St. Stephen of Hungary

Thursday, August 16 (in Hungary August 20) is the Memorial of St. Stephen of Hungary. Son of the Magyar chieftain Geza, Stephen (Vajk) succeeded his father as leader of the Magyars in 997.

A devout Christian, Stephen used his power to promote the Christian faith throughout the region near the Danube River. He crushed a series of revolts against Christianity. Stephen required that one in every ten towns must build a Catholic church; and he provided for the support of the local priests by instituting a tithe to assist churches and pastors, and to help the poor.

In recognition of his efforts to defend and spread the Catholic faith, Stephen was crowned King of Hungary on Christmas Day in the year 1000. The coronation is commemorated in sculptures of Stephen receiving the cross and crown from Pope Sylvester II.

Stephen had hoped that his son Emeric might succeed him to the throne; but the young man died in 1031, leaving Stephen to grieve for the remainder of his life. Both Stephen and his son Emeric were canonized by Pope St. Gregory VII in 1083.

Following are some of Stephen's words of counsel to his beloved son.

My dearest son, if you desire to honour the royal crown, I advise, I counsel, I urge you above all things to maintain the Catholic and apostolic faith with such diligence and care that you may be an example for all those placed under you by God and that all the clergy may rightly call you a man of true Christian profession. Failing to do this, you may be sure that you will not be called a Christian or a son of the Church. Indeed, in the royal palace - after the faith itself - the Church holds second place, first propagated as she was by our head, Christ; then transplanted, firmly constituted and spread through the whole world by his members, the apostles and holy fathers. And though she always produced fresh offspring, nevertheless in certain places she is regarded as ancient.

However, dearest son, even now in our kingdom the Church is proclaimed as young and newly planted; and for that reason she needs more prudent and trustworthy guardians lest a benefit which the divine mercy bestowed on us undeservedly should be destroyed and annihilated through your idleness, indolence or neglect.

My beloved son, delight of my heart, hope of your posterity, I pray, I command, that at every time and in everything, strengthened by your devotion to me, you may show favour not only to relations and kin, or to the most eminent, be they leaders or rich men or neighbours or fellow-countrymen, but also to foreigners and to all who come to you. By fulfilling your duty in this way you will reach the highest state of happiness. Be merciful to all who are suffering violence, keeping always in your heart the example of the Lord who said: I desire mercy and not sacrifice. Be patient with everyone, not only with the powerful, but also with the weak.

Finally be strong lest prosperity lift you up too much or adversity cast you down. Be humble in this life, that God may raise you up in the next. Be truly moderate and do not punish or condemn anyone immoderately. Be gentle so that you may never oppose justice. Be honourable so that you may never voluntarily bring disgrace upon anyone. Be chaste so that you may avoid all the foulness of lust like the pangs of death.

All these virtues I have noted above make up the royal crown and without them no one is fit to rule here on earth or attain to the heavenly kingdom.

Thoughts of Saint Ignatius of Loyola

* Has God put you into this world so that you may live as if there were no such things as heaven and hell? Is getting saved so easy a business that you need not trouble yourself about it?

* It is not fitting that those who are implicated in their own affairs should immediately turn to the things of the soul: that would be like casting a hook without worm or bait.
