Fostering Vocations and Education of Seminarians:

We are happy that God has blessed our Archdiocese with a great number of vocations. At the same time due to financial constraints, we are not able to pay for their maintenance. Their training and education to be future priests needs your financial support.

Maintenance of the Priests: Our Archdiocese has been blessed with the presence of 207 Diocesan priests. We need prayers and financial support for the maintenance of the priests, providing them medical assistance, providing resources and opportunities for the on-going education and formation and providing a decent living quarters and support for our retired clergy.

The Education of the Poor Children: Our Archbishop's preferential option for the liberation and development of the poor and the marginalized can be very well sensed by his Education Mission to the faithful of the Archdiocese. The Education of The Poor Children needs financial support.

Social and Economic Development: The Archdiocese has also been working for the social and economic development of the poor and the needy.

The Archdiocese runs homes for the sick, the poor and the aged and has self-help groups, income generation programs, community house-construction, vocational training for basic life-skills – all necessary means for the development of the poor and the needy.

The pope's missionary intention for August

Unpaid work qualifies as voluntary when it benefits others rather than the workers themselves. Even though a lot of unpaid work exists, these jobs are not necessarily all voluntary activities.

The phenomenon of volunteerism is very different. It is uncertain how many people do voluntary work in the world although it is estimated there could be around 140 million people involved. Volunteers perform various tasks for others free of charge. They are normal, ordinary people living in our midst, with distinct responsibilities and different ages and levels of education. Different countries have various levels of volunteerism due to cultural reasons.

Volunteers participate through Non-Governmental Organisations, youth groups or clubs and other forms of associations. Each of these institutions, in turn, have different objectives, working with the disabled, or with children, with socially at-risk youths and with the sick or the elderly. Some work in hospitals, some in schools, and others work with migrants or in support of children or prisoners.

In general, voluntary workers support various social groups needing assistance. Volunteers will also flock to help in exceptional situations, such as natural disasters or large charity campaigns.

Volunteers converge where there is need, and where the everyday structures of society are not sufficient. They cover informal areas which are enriched by their presence. Their presence, although it may be subtle, unpublicised and unrecognised, is fundamental to the daily smile of many human beings.

This month the Holy Father invites us to pray for all these people, so they may serve others with generosity, and why not, perhaps I can include a prayer so that I too may carry out some kind of volunteerism to benefit my brothers and sisters. Fr. Juan Cristóbal Beytia, SJ

"Today, there are many forms of voluntary assistance, models of mutual service, of which our society has urgent need. We must not, for example, abandon the elderly to their solitude; we must not pass by when we meet people who are suffering. If we think and live according to our communion with Christ, then our eyes will be opened. Then we will no longer be content to scrape a living just for ourselves, but we will see where and how we are needed. Living and acting thus, we will soon realize that it is much better to be useful and at the disposal of others than to be concerned only with the comforts that are offered to us. I know that you as young people have great aspirations that you want to pledge yourselves to build a better world. Let others see this, let the world see it, since this is exactly the witness that the world expects from the disciples of Jesus Christ; in this way, and through your love above all, the world will be able to discover the star that we follow as believers". (Pope Benedict XVI)

Thoughts of St. Ignatius of Loyola

Those who have care of souls need nothing so much as courage, lest, while they are looking after others' salvation, they endanger their own.
